NEVER DOUBT THAT A SMALL GROUP OF COMMITTED CITIZENS CAN CHANGE THE WORLD. IT'S THE ONLY THING THAT EVER HAS. MARGARET MEAD

We're looking for ordinary people who have done extraordinary things.

We're looking for people who have stood up for race equality and who marched for equal pay. We're looking for campaigners who fought for gay Pride and for disabled rights.

In the workplace or on the streets; in the town hall or in Parliament, we want to hear from people who have fought, campaigned, and lobbied for change.

SO WHAT'S YOUR STORY?

What is the Tapestry project about?

We want to hear stories about individuals, organisations, and communities who have challenged unfair treatment. It might be racism, sexism, homophobia, religious hatred, ageism or any other form of discrimination. We'll then disseminate these stories through schools, community centres, and an exhibition to remember and celebrate past struggles and mark the similarities between different types of inequality and prejudice.

How can I get involved?

Two ways. Firstly, we want to hear from you if you've stood up to discrimination and inequality – in any way – in the past, Secondly, we're looking for volunteers who are interested in researching or conducting interviews to uncover these stories. Full training will be provided.

How do I find out more?
